Following a thinkAG Career Competition, of agriculture & food industry volunteers agree that their participation had a positive impact on students

The thinkAG Career Competition was a fun and interactive experience. I learned about many different jobs and how they are connected to agriculture, the environment, and helping people in my community.

Following a thinkAG Career Competition, of teachers agree that the program provides an engaging and interactive experience for their students

It was a tremendous experience for students to learn about a variety of opportunities in the agricultural sector. There was a lot of curiosity in our student group, and it was wonderful to see how “close-to-home” these opportunities are.

Programs like this play a vital role in our educational system. Allowing students to actively engage with industry representatives can often provide a valuable learning experience for all.

Beyond keeping agricultural industry awareness alive, the variety of organizations and businesses that this program offers is incredible, including livestock industry representatives, equipment dealerships, post-secondary education programs, government offices, and more.
